DAINTIES FOR THE TEA TABLE.

A sandwich or two with a small cake or cooky with a cupful of tea is sufficiently sustaining for a light refreshment.

German Cookies .- Stir until foamy one and a third cupfuls of powdered sugar and three eggs, add a few drops of vanilla and two cupfuls of flour. Grease the tins. sprinkle with flour, then drop in teaspoonfuls in round heaps far enough apart so they do not touch and bake in a moderate oven.

Bund Kuchen.-Beat a half cupful of softened butter, with one-half cupful of sugar, four eggs, the grated rind of a lemon, one-half pound of raisins, one teaspoonful of salt; add a yeast cake, softened in a little warm water; one pint of luke-warm milk and three and three-quarters cupfuls of sifted flour. Work the dough with a wooden spoon, butter the pan well and sprinkle with flour, pour in the dough and let it rise for three hours in a warm place, then bake in a hot oven. Cover with paper if it browns too quickly.

Schwarzbrod Torte.-Cut in thin slices rye bread well dried, or dry in the oven, then grate fine. Pour over a cupful of the crumbs, a tablespoonful of vanilla and a half cupful of grape juice. Add two cupfuls of finely chopped almonds, four ounces of citron, the rind of a lemon, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one saltspoonful of cloves, and a tablespoonful of flour. Now stir one and a third cupfuls of powdered sugar and the yolks of a dozen eggs until foamy, using four yolks to begin with and adding them one by one, stirring well after each addition. Mix lightly, then add the stiffly beaten whites. Butter the baking pan, sprinkle with crumbs and put in the cake mixture. Bake forty-five minutes. If it browns too rapidly, cover with paper.

Butter Cookles .- Stir and beat cupful of butter, one-half cupful of sugar, one whole egg and the yolks of two, flavor with almond and add two cupfuls of flour, sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Cool for an hour, then cut out with a small cooky cutter, brush with the white of an egg and sprinkle with granulated sugar.

WOLF HUNTING WITH EAGLES

Trained by Eastern Falconers Who Carry Them on the Wrist. All wanderers are lovers of the chase, but for sheer love of sport and daring exploits the Kirghiz take the palm. Central Asia is the home of to Europe until the Crusaders brought back falcons with them from their Eastern wanderings.

But imagine, says the Wide World Magazine, the ambition of the men who fly their birds at wolves and foxes instead of at qualls and partridges! Not content with hunting game birds with small falcons the Kirghiz capture and train the great golden eagles, with which they hunt such game as gazelle, foxes and even wolves.

A well mounted Kirghiz falconer carrying on his wrist one of these magnificent birds is a fine sight. The weight of the eagle is such that the owner requires a support for his wrist. and the hunters are usually to be seen with a little wooden bracket that supports the arm against the hip.

The eagles are hooded, as all falcons are, but can only be used in winter when they are hungry and keen. In summer they are fed on marmots and live a restful life, sitting in the sun in front of the tent

When gazelle or wolves are the objects of the chase the eagles are aided by long, sleek greyhounds of a small breed, the dogs running in and pulling down the quarry when the eagles have sufficiently bewildered it.

"Why did you abandon your plan to become a doctor?" asked the motorist. "I can't bear to see other people suffer," answered the garage man. "Umph! I guess it's all in the point of view." "How is that?" "I notice you didn't shed any tears for repairs.'

Experimenter Declares Product Equal to the Best. A French horticulturist, Monsieur de Noyer, proposes the stems of spin-ach for making paper. These contain

46 per cent of cellolose against 4 per cent in the stems of wheat straw. M. de Noyer claims that in his experiments in making paper from spinach stems he has followed the methods of the Grenoble paper-making school and has produced equal to the best Japanese in its remarkable consistency. per making that with the proper culture of spinach for this purpose remarkable economies in the manufacture of paper may be achieved.

Patrolmen Purtell and Mahoney and Building Inspector Corcoran of Ansonia, Conn., claim to have seen a parrot which manicured its nails with a penknife. While these men watch ed, this bird picked up the knife from the bottom of its cage and, holding it in its mouth, carefully scraped its toes on the blade. When this was done the parrot's satisfaction it dropped the knife.

GARDEN CUTWORM REMEDIES

Poisoned-Bran Balts Effective-Ditches, Barriers, or Arsenical Sprays

for Extreme Outbreaks. Tomatoes, cabbages, sweet pota toes, lettuce, and other truck plants, especially those which are started under glass and transplanted, are subject to serious injury by cutworms. These pests appear sometimes in great numbers in the spring and early summer, and frequently do severe injury before their ravages are noticed. Their method of attack is to cut off the young plants at about the surface of the ground, and as these caterpillars are of large size and to-racious feeders, they are capable of destroying many plants in a single night-frequently more than they can devour. Every year these insects, working generally throughout the United States, have destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of crops. By the timely application of remedies, however, as has been demonstrated by entomologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, they readily can be controlled, even over considerable areas. The usual method of control is by the use of poisoned

How to Mix and Apply Poisoned Baits Take a bushel of dry bran, add 1 pound of white arsenic or Paris green, and thix it thoroughly into mash with 8 gallons of water in which has been stirred half a gallon of sorghum or other cheap molasses. (Arsenic and Paris green are deadly polsons. Handle them with great care.) This amount will be sufficient for the treatment of about 4 or 5 acres of cultivat ed crops. After the mash has stood for several hours, scatter it, in lumps about the size of a marble, over the fields where the injury is beginning to appear and about the bases of the plants set out. Apply late in the day, so as to place the poison about the plants before night, which is the time when the cutworms are active. Apply a second time, if necessary. Keep children, live stock and chickens away from this balt.

What to Do When Cutworms Travel

Like Army Worms. When cutworms occur in unusual abundance, which happens locally, and sometimes generally, they exhaust their food supply and migrate to other fields. This they do literally in armies, assuming what is called the army worm habit. At such tim . It is necessary to treat them the same as army worms. While the methods which have been advised are valuable in such cases, they may be too slow to destroy all the cutworms, and other methods must be employed. These include tree times, disching, the plowing of deep furrows in advance of the traveling cutworms to trap them, and the dragging of logs or brush through the furrows. If the trenches can be filled with water, the addition of a small quantit of kerosene, so as to form a thin scum on the surface, will prove fatal to the cutworms. In extreme cases, barriers of fence boards are erected and the to s smeared with tar or other sticky substances to stop the cutworms as they attempt to Spraying wih Arsenicals. In extremely severe attacks by cutworms on choice plants there i: sometimes no opportunity to prepare the poisoned bait. In such cases an arsenate of lead spray will answer quite as well. In one instance a parsley field was sprayed with 4 pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water; this killed all the cutworms, whereas if they had been left alone for a day or two longer the field probably would have been destroyed. The result was a perfect stand-the best ever made by the grower. In this case five applications were necessary. Cultural Methods and Crop Rotation.

Clean cultural methods and crop rotation are advisable, as are also fall plowing and disking, to prevent recurrences of cutworm attacks. Many cutworms can be destroyed where it is possible to overflow the fields, particularly where irrigation is practiced. Tell a woman distance lends enchantment to the view and she will at once cultivate a distant manner.

NO WASTE IN OIL

Go back to the days when Pennsylvania crude was $3 a barrel or higher in 1877 and before, and gasoline was a waste product. There was no market for it. Refiners were glad to get rid of it at almost any price, or even give it away. In some instances thousands of gallons were dumped into the streams as the storing of it was a men- ace to the works, and there was no future outlook for it. As much of the lighter product as possible was left in the kerosene, and the manufacturers sought uses for it in various ways. Conditions have reversed themselves. Gasoline is the most desirable product of petroleum. Instead of blending it with the lighter grades of kerosene, the latter is being cut to make more gasoline, and the gravity of the motive power fluid is being reduced until it has practically reached the gravity of street. Will sell very resaonable if sold soon. I. E. Christman, Canfield. has practically reached the gravity of product has become an important article of commerce, says Oil City Derrick. A barrel of oil, which in past years lost a certain proportion in waste, is now utilized to the last pint. The barrel of crude petroleum has increased in intrinsic value because more of its component parts have been called for in the world's industrial growth, until now there is nothing lost. Petroleum illuminates and heats the homes of thousands; it cooks meals; it preserves ganned foods; it enters into dozens of little household duties which are made easier by its use; it turns wheels in great factories: it drives locomotives; speeds the automobiles; has made airplane and submarine practical; does farm chores; smooths the roads; destroys pests; is valuable in medicine, and attracts the highest scientific knowledge in its study. From the humblest of duties to the greatest, petroleum plays its part, and to this perfect utilization of all its products is due the higher prices which it commands.

Did you ever talk with a man who insisted upon doing all the talking; who kept right on despite all your efforts to get in a word edgewise? If you did, you had a most uncomfortable experience. He makes you feel that he talks right on only to crowd you out. You endeavor to insert a word, and he increases his utterance in power and emphasis, so you become quite convinced that, to use a common phase, he is jumping on you with both feet. It is the most conspicuous conspiracy of ill-breeding that one meets with in society, says Ohlo State Journal. The idea of a man shutting out another in a little friendly talk is worse than impolite; it is shameful. One hesitates to imitate the conversational monopolist, but it is the only way to meet him, if you have good lungs and a fund of patience. You won't need any brains in the contest, for all you contend with is noise and wind. N. B.-Remember, however, that conversation offers the balloons on Independence day-or at any other time-would undoubtedly be a fire protection measure of great importance and effect. But it is not merely the children that would be grieved at such a deprivation. It has been noticed that grownups play the star part in the balloon launching while the children are merely innocent and envious bystanders. Sending up paper balloons for the children puts the same burden on father that taking the children to the circus does.

Some health experts are advising people by way of precaution against pneumonia to avoid crowds in which other people are coughing and sneezing. A step further towards prevention would be to advise the public generally to stop the pernicious activity of coughing and sneezing altogether.

Many people think that prayer is nothing but begging the Lord for something. You can pray very effectively by putting your hands to the plow and your shoulder to the wheel. The man who wants to pray for a corn crop will get results if he and the old gray mule will do their part.

A camera has been invented that will photograph an object no matter how fast it is moving. However, a camera like that is not needed to photograph a citizen with the tooth sche going to see his dentist.

Another type of optin ist is the man who is cheerfully waiting for the price of automobiles to get so low that he can afford to buy one.

One wonders where the circuses get their acrobats now that so many are acting in motion pictures.
